...imagine what over a million digital resources could say.

Begin the journey

The School of Athens. The painting is a passageway to the collective knowledge of the great philosophers, scientists and mathematicians of ancient Greece.

You want your students to see it, but a field trip to the museum is out of the question, and the textbook entry does not do the painting justice.

Instead transport your students to ancient Athens, to the birthplace of democracy. Immerse them in its politics and culture.

Show your students an image of the painting and discuss how Aristotle and Plato have shaped Western philosophy. Link modern geography with Anaximander's contributions by inserting a map manipulative. Examine Archimedes' principle of levers with a video of modern bridge construction.

The adventure begins with the SMART Learning Marketplace.
