SMART and Lync

Putting collaboration on the agenda

Imagine Microsoft Lync on a large, touch-enabled surface where you can really collaborate with colleagues – even if they're halfway around the world. All it takes is one small piece of software. The connector for Lync brings together the Microsoft Lync unified communications platform, SMART's interactive displays and SMART Meeting Pro software. With this combination, it's so much easier to collaborate. You can use it in meeting rooms to get everyone working together – so even long-distance participants feel like they're in the same room.

Familiar Lync features

Use the Lync features you already know, including the conversation window, Lync toolbar and stage area

SMART Meeting Pro toolbar

Think of it as your control center. This is where you can switch from whiteboarding to applications to websites.

Meeting start-up

To begin a meeting, just log in. SMART Meeting Pro and Lync load automatically. Your meeting details appear onscreen.

Digital ink

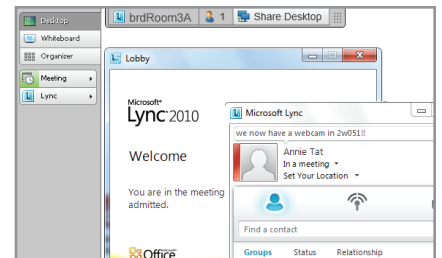

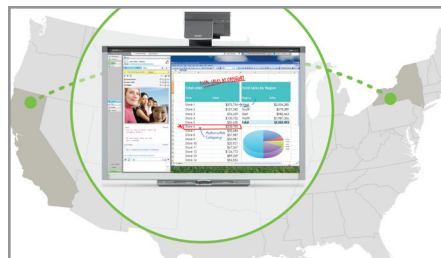

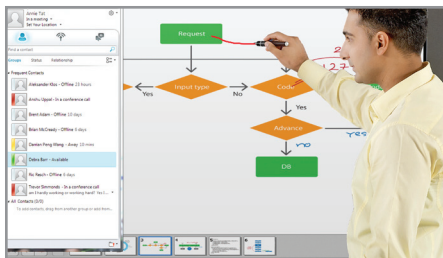

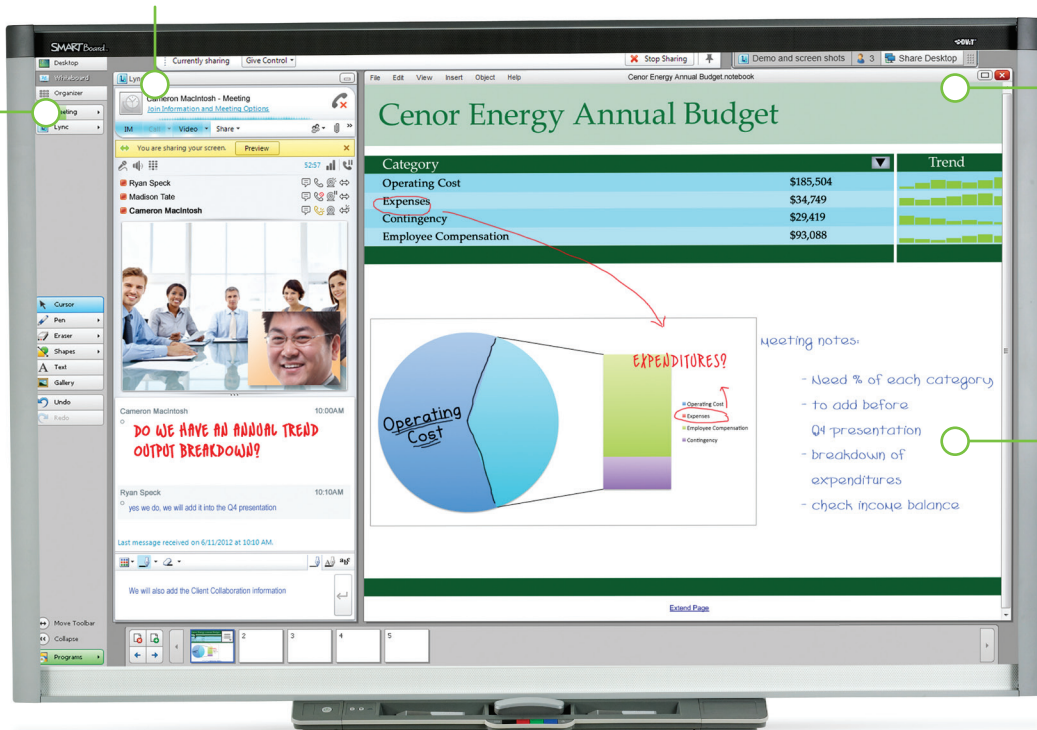

Write in digital ink on the whiteboarding area, or over any application, document or web page. You and your remote colleagues can make notes for everyone to see in real time. Then save them in the native file format.

Easy whiteboarding

Now it's digital, so it's infinite. Plus, you have whiteboarding tools like an image gallery, handwriting-to-text converter, and a shape creator.

Capture notes

Save digital notes into any application and send them out instantly. You'll have a comprehensive record of your meeting.

More than just a whiteboard

SMART's interactive displays give you a digital workspace that's essentially infinite. Just pick up a pen and write down ideas. Or refer to websites and documents. Then save all your notes as a single file and send them to colleagues instantly.

Powerful remote collaboration

Everyone in your meeting can participate – even if they're connecting remotely. Whether they're in another meeting room or using their own laptop, your remote colleagues can collaborate with you. You're connected by audio and video, but digital ink is the key. When you or your remote participants make notes in digital ink, everyone sees them in real time.

Starting meetings is a snap

To start collaborating, just log in to your meeting room computer. SMART Meeting Pro and Lync will start running automatically. And you'll see all your meeting details on the screen – attendees, attachments and all the information from your original invitation. Then it's as easy as creating a video link and sharing your screen.
